How to read this guide

This is your beta player's handbook. It opens with the controls and the core mechanics, then gives every fighter their own card — archetype, passive, normals, specials, ultimate, bread-and-butter combos, and how to use them. The final pages are what we most need from you: a watch-list of things to look for and a set of feedback questions. Every move and combo here is pulled straight from the game's own data, so it matches what you'll see in-game.

Controls

Player 1 (keyboard)

Move left / right	A / D
Jump / Up	W
Crouch	S

Controllers are supported too — plug in and the menus show the right glyphs.

Performing specials

Special (L)	the character's neutral special / 1st technique
-------------	---

Down + Special (S + L)	their 2nd special
Forward + Special (toward foe + L)	their 3rd special or mobility move
Up / Back + Special	some fighters have extra directional specials — experiment
Ultimate (U, full meter)	their ultimate / domain / finisher
Up-Attack (I)	launches BOTH fighters upward — your gateway to air combos

Core mechanics

A quick primer so beta feedback lands on the right things.

Meter builds as you fight. Landing and taking hits fills your energy bar (Ki / cursed energy / reiatsu, etc.). Specials cost meter; the Ultimate needs a full bar.

Combo scaling. Damage tapers across a combo (100% → 92% → 84% → 76% → 70% → 65%), so longer strings pay less per hit — enders matter more than length.

Combo Breaker. While you're being combo'd (3+ hits), you can burst out: it costs meter (or a limited per-round stock if you're empty) and gives you brief invulnerability. Use it to escape a beating — but it's not spammable.

Launchers & air combos. Up-Attack (I) pops both fighters up. Follow with Air attacks to juggle. This is the core of most bread-and-butter routes.

Blocking & Flawless Block. Hold ; to guard. Guarding the instant an attack lands (a fresh, well-timed block) rewards a tighter punish window — reactive defense is rewarded, mashing guard is not.

Transformations. Several fighters (Goku, Gohan, Piccolo, Vegeta and more) transform by holding Charge (P) with enough meter — boosting damage/speed/defense, draining over time. It's a resource decision, not free.

Grabs. Grab (O) beats a turtling blocker and can't be blocked — mix it into your pressure so defenders can't just hold guard.

99 fighters across 20 universes. 56 have their specials fully listed; the rest have them coded in-game — perform them with Special + a direction (flagged below so you can help us document them).

Dragon Ball · 12 fighters

Ki blasts, beam wars & Saiyan transformations

● Bardock

melee

Medium

ki

Bardock — melee fighter.

Passive — Saiyan Warrior: A hardened low-class Saiyan elite — grounded melee pressure backed by a real sword sub-kit (drawn on crouch, dives and overhead slashes). No ground walk cycle on the sheet (borrows idle, like Frieza/Piccolo/Gotenks).

NORMALS

Light Attack	Light	fast poke
Heavy Attack	Heavy	knockback strike

● Cell

Bio-Android Bruiser / Constant Pressure

Medium

Ki

A durable, high-attack juggernaut who mixes copied Ki blasts with relentless melee and perfects himself for a final-form spike.

Passive — Cellular Absorption: Recovers a small amount of Ki whenever he lands a melee hit, fueling near-constant special pressure.

NORMALS

Jab Combo	Light	fast poke, slightly heavier than most
Power Strike	Heavy	slow heavy hit with strong knockback
Rising Kick	Up-Attack	launcher — starts air combos (also lifts you)

Beta test — what to watch for

If you hit any of these, please note the character, the input, and what you were doing. Bugs with a clear "how to reproduce" are gold.

- Placeholder / broken art: Any fighter that renders as a plain box, a wrong sprite, or a missing pose (win/lose/intro). Note who + when.
- Dead or broken inputs: A special/ultimate that doesn't fire, fires the wrong move, or only works sometimes. Note the exact input + character.
- Touch-of-death / infinites: Any combo that loops forever or kills from one opening without a Combo Breaker escape. This is top-priority to report.
- Combo Breaker failures: Times you were being combo'd (3+ hits) with meter/stock but couldn't break out.
- Balance outliers: A move or character that feels clearly too strong or useless. Name the move, not just the character.
- Control-reference mismatch: The in-game MOVE LIST control hints are out of date — the REAL defaults are the ones in this doc (Special = L, Ultimate = U). Confirm the in-game text and flag it.
- Undocumented specials: Some fighters don't list named specials in the in-game move list yet — try Special + each direction in Training and tell us what you find (and whether it's obvious).
- Audio gaps: Missing voice lines / SFX, or the wrong clip. Several characters are known-silent — note which stood out.
- Crashes / freezes / softlocks: Anything that stops the match or the menus. Write down exactly what you were doing right before.
- UI / theme glitches: Any menu that looks broken, text overflowing off-screen, or a theme that renders wrong (try a few themes + a couple of character UIs).

Questions for you

After a few matches, we'd love your answers to these:

1. Which 2–3 characters felt the STRONGEST, and which felt the WEAKEST? Why?
2. Was there any move that felt unfair (too strong / unreactable) or completely useless?
3. Did combos flow well, or did they feel stiff / drop unexpectedly?
4. Was the CPU difficulty about right, too easy, or too hard?
5. Were the controls and mechanics clear from the start? What confused you?
6. Who was your FAVOURITE character to play, and why?
7. Did you hit any crashes, freezes, or visual glitches? What were you doing?
8. Which UI theme did you like best? Did you notice the per-character UI colours?
9. How did the game FEEL overall — snappy and responsive, or floaty / laggy?
10. On a scale of 1–10, how likely are you to play again — and what's the one change that would raise that number?
